GUIDING HAITIANS

U. S. Rule More Far-Reaching Than Dominican Plan.

Protectorate in Operation Under Modus Vivendi.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The new Haitian treaty by which the United States extend a broad financial protectorate over the island republic now is in operation under a modus vivendi which has been signed by the American minister and the Haitian secretary of foreign affairs.

This temporary arrangement will continue until the United States senate has had an opportunity to consider the treaty, which already has been ratified by the Haitian government.

The treaty goes further in giving the United States control over Haiti's finances than does the convention under which the United States collects and supervises the customs receipts in the Dominican republic. Under the latter arrangement the United States retains a portion of the receipts for payment of foreign creditors, and the balance is turned over to the Dominicans. Under the Haitian agreement, however, Haiti agrees that the agents of the United States are to retain a measure of control not only over the money to be applied to Haiti's foreign creditors, but also over the funds to be used in the running of their government.

FACE KNOTTY PROBLEM

Kansas Lawyers Are Trying to Unravel the Alien Land Situation.

An international treaty, the common law of England, the constitution of the state of Kansas, amendments to the state constitution and acts passed by the state legislature of Kansas and subsequently repealed, all play a part in the maze of legal questions which S. M. Brewster, state attorney general, and John Hunt, assistant, have met in their attempts to formulate a ruling on the rights of foreigners to inherit real estate in Kansas.

Several questions relating to alien land rights have arisen in the state recently. The special appeal for a ruling, with which the attorney general's office is attempting to comply, was made by an Ottawa minister, who is executor for an estate, some of the heirs to which are citizens of Great Britain.

Briefly, the problem faced is whether or not, if a treaty made between the United States and Great Britain in 1900, is no longer effective, Kansas can be governed by the original common law on this point, which provides that aliens may not inherit land in view of many changes in the state constitution and statutes.

A thorough investigation of the rights of aliens has resulted. Ordinarily the state constitution provided, according to Mr. Hunt, that there should be no distinction between the rights of aliens and of citizens of the United States. In 1888, however, the constitution was amended, making no distinction possible between the rights of residents of Kansas and residents of other states and territories of the United States, it being provided that the rights of other persons might be

Dry Cleaning Is Play For Women

Put gasoline and solvite in a wash boiler and save $5 in an hour.

Ever dry clean at home? Well, it's so easy, inexpensive and the results so pleasing you'll be surprised. Any woman can clean and renew the brightness of ribbons, silks, satins, laces, ruffles, silk shirt waists, kid gloves and shoes, furs, neckties, children's coats, suits, caps, swans, lawn, organdy and chiffon, dresses, fancy dresses, fancy vests, velvets, flower garments, network draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with no preservative.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drug store and put it in two gallons of gasoline where it quickly dissolves. Then put in the clothes or any flannel, rub a little and out they come looking as bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing else, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

Any woman can do five dollars' worth of home dry cleaning in a few moments and you can't make a mistake. Your dryer or any garage will supply the gasoline and the drug store will sell you two ounces of solvite which is simply a gasoline soap. Then a wash boiler or large dish pan completes your dry-cleaning outfit. "As gasoline is very inflammable, be sure to do your dry cleaning out of doors or in a room away from fire or flammable with the windows left open."—Advertisement.

At the Grand.

The beloved American actor, William H. Crane, has passed the fifty mile mark as a public entertainer. He enjoys the proud distinction of having been responsibly identified with the original production of more native plays than any other actor. His only departure from the record was during the golden reign of Robson and Crane, when the firm appeared in elaborate productions of "Two Gentlemen of Verona," "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Comedy of Errors." Even in this long ago they alternated their program with the gingersome comedy emanating from Boston, "Our Boarding House." He will be seen in "The Henrietta," which will be the attraction at the Grand tonight.

Edward Lynch and associate players will enter upon their third week of stock at the Grand tomorrow afternoon, and the bill for the matinee and the balance of the week will be "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "The Comedy of Errors," "Our Boarding House," "The Henrietta," which will be the attraction at the Grand tonight.

At the Novelty.

Musical dominates the program at the Novelty this week, the Three Loretas while not topnotch musicians—are able to put fire and snap into their playing and entertain with a remarkable versatility. Their imitation of Charlie Chaplin approximates the real thing. The act features a sketch by Arthur O. May and Sunny Kidiff is better than a thousand others of the same class and the makeups are good. Martini and Maximilian, magicians, give a series of tricks and cleverly expose them one by one. They are probably the only tricksters on the Orpheum stage who do not try to keep their tricks secret. Other acts are Fern & Zell in a "Southern Homestead," and the Ceveney troupe, "Maniacs of the Double Wire."

Triangle Films.

If the succeeding Triangle films measure up to the standard of picture-making and human interest set by "The Iron Strain" Topeka movie enthusiasts can be sure of a new niece. The first of the Triangle releases, which was shown last night at the Orpheum theater, gained immediate favor. There were expressions of pleasure given freely by those who saw Dustin Farnum in the fascinating picture of the north and this, after all, is the final criticism; for if the picture pleased the majority nothing more is needed.

When the rain came down in torrents, in the small Alaskan village and the people rammed knee-deep in mud, the picture of the north and this, after all, is the final criticism; for if the picture pleased the majority nothing more is needed.

"The Spoilers," the wonderful film in which William Farnum, Dustin's brother, starred. From this scene, which is shown at the start of the picture, to the very last, the audience is pleasantly surprised. Each scene seems more and more like the one preceding. One thing is certain: the director, Thomas H. Ince, had an eye for beauty and the photographer the power to get the effect with his camera.

The story of "The Iron Strain" is not a complicated one. It deals with the passionate desire of a man, rugged and ready, who lives in that northern country that produces the iron strain, to have the girl he loves. In order to do so he carries her away and marries her. The struggle of the girl, who hates her husband at the start, furnishes the motive for the entire picture in the latter part of the picture.

The film play is entirely pleasing in every respect and its artistry is faultless.

In addition to the picture two acts of vaudeville are shown. This makes

At the Hip.

S. Leonard Davis, a blind musician, tops the big act at the Hip this week. The Castle Davis Trio play and sing. Davis is a blind pianist and accompanist, and his piano selection. The act is entirely musical and well handled. Black face comedy by Padon and his troupe, and the footlighters, Knight and Moore, dancers and singers, have good voices and their audience would appreciate much more singing from them.

At the Orpheum.

Raymond Hitchcock, who has been a laugh in musical comedy since the days of "The Yankee Consul," has yielded to the lure of motion pictures and will be seen at the Orpheum Wednesday in his first Keystone farce, "My Valet." The comedian has taken with him into the films all that natural humor which has made him so successful in flesh and blood productions. His facial expression, funny walk and gesture, and his stock in trade are all there. With them are Mack Sennett, creator of Keystone comedy, and some of his foremost cameramen and practical joke artists, including Mabel Normand and Fred Mace.

At the Iris.

Censor boards would go out of business if all picture producers would offer the "Chimmie Fadden" type. Victor Moore, in this mirth-provoking photoplay at the Iris yesterday and today, provides an entertainment thoroughly wholesome and irresistibly funny. From the opening moment to the close of the play there is constant humor, and there is much beside humor, too. Youth and old age, and the children as well, will enjoy the picture. It is far removed from the "flapstick" variety.

A Smooth, White Skin That Defies Weather

During the coming months of biting winds and intense cold, you who would keep your skin smooth and white, must turn your attention to mercurized wax. Nothing else will so effectively remove the roughness or redness of the skin, and there is much beside humor, too. Youth and old age, and the children as well, will enjoy the picture. It is far removed from the "flapstick" variety.
